7000 PEOPLE
ONE JOB
HARTFORD HOSPITAL
2008 ANNUAL REPORT
The 7,000 people of Hartford Hospital include 6,000 full- and part-time employees and an active Medical Staff of 1,000—all committed to providing safe, high-quality health care to every patient, every day.
Patients come to us in need. They honor us with their trust. They place their health, and often even their lives, in our hands. It’s up to each of us to be sure they receive the highest-quality care. Safety is the foundation of quality care. Each of us, in our own way, plays a vital part in keeping patients safe. Our leadership team plays a critical role by providing and communicating a clear vision and making sure we have the knowledge, resources and systems necessary for peak performance. Each of us shares that vision and embraces it as our own. By making patient safety the focus of our individual roles, we create a hospital-wide culture of safety that is manifested in everything we do, every single day. The result is an entire hospital community committed to continuously improving safety and quality for every patient who entrusts us with their care.
Patients’ health—sometimes even their lives—depends on properly functioning medical devices. I help protect patients by making sure that all clinical infusion devices are in excellent working order. I inspect the devices, perform regular preventive maintenance and handle any repairs necessary. Part of my job is providing technical expertise to clinical staff and other technicians and educating them in proper use of this sophisticated equipment. Today, more than ever, medical devices are a vital component of good, safe patient care.
A patient is safe only if the care environment is safe. One of the ways Engineering ensures a safe environment is through weekly rounds. I go to one of the nursing units, where a nurse and I do a detailed inspection of the physical environment. If I find anything that could be a safety hazard I address it right away. The nurses know they can count on me to get things done. Helping people is my thing. That’s why I’m also a palliative care volunteer here at the hospital.
We use specified disinfectants to clean rooms and beds between patients, and I clean as if the next patient in that room was going to be my mom. I put on gloves before I go in, strip the room, wash everything down and set it up for the next patient. Before I leave the room, I take off my gloves so germs don’t spread, then I wash my hands with Purell®. I’ve been at Hartford Hospital for 30 years, and I sometimes help train new people. I work alongside them as they learn to properly and completely clean a room and get it ready for the next patient.
take my work seriously, because good nutrition is essential to the healing process. I inspect deliveries to make sure foods are wholesome and fresh on arrival, then I work closely with our staff of 35 to see that food is handled safely and prepared according to exacting standards. We’re always testing new recipes. And we sample test trays to ensure that patients receive high-quality meals. Our kitchen serves roughly 5,800 meals a day, and I want every one of them to be both healthful and appealing.
I’ve been here more than 40 years, and I love my job. I work with the clinical departments to make sure they have the equipment and supplies they need to care for patients and keep them safe. We research and try out products, stock approximately 2,000 items in our storeroom, and keep all the units supplied. That patient on the unit—it could be me, you or a family member. And that patient is depending on me to do my job well so they’re protected and can get the treatment they need.
Being a nurse is exactly what I was meant to do. I love it. And every aspect of nursing involves patient safety— infection control, medication administration, documentation and more. I initiated an allergy bracelet program here. If a patient being admitted has any medication or food allergies, we create a red bracelet with the allergies listed right on it. The patient wears it throughout his stay. The allergy information is also in the electronic record, but the bracelet is an added check that further protects the patient—and protecting the patient is our top priority.
treat every patient the way I would want to be treated. If a patient is at risk of falling, I make sure bed and chair alarms are on and that the patient has everything within reach. I also check on that patient more often. When patients are on contact precautions to prevent the spread of infection, I help visitors understand the precautions and make sure staff and visitors follow them. Plus, I wash my hands all the time and remind others to do it, as well.
When I’m called to lift a patient, I ask the nurse about any special needs, so I can give the patient a safe lift. We’re always thinking about keeping the patient safe during transport. I make sure that the side rails on the stretcher are up or that the wheelchair wheels are locked before I help a patient into it. I help the nurses and PCAs reposition bariatric patients to prevent pressure ulcers. I’m a people person—I try to give every patient the same care I’d like for myself.
Safe, effective medications with minimal side effects—that’s what we’re all about. Pharmacists review all medication orders and double-check that the drug and the dosage are safe for that patient. If we note any allergies or drug interactions, we’ll recommend an alternative medication. If the patient’s kidney or liver function isn’t normal, we’ll suggest a different dose. With some medications—antibiotics and blood thinners, for example—dosing is especially crucial, so prescribers often work with us to identify the best dose and arrange for proper monitoring.
To ensure safe, high-quality care in today’s fast-paced environment, we physicians have to consciously slow down, focus intently on the task at hand, and listen. We have to listen carefully to our patients and consider what their complaints may indicate. We have to stop and listen to our colleagues—nurses, pharmacists and others—when they raise concerns about a medication or procedure. Historically, people were reluctant to question doctors. I’m glad that, with the culture of safety spreading through the hospital, people feel free to speak up if they have concerns.
Quality is made up of many elements, including excellent, efficient clinical care and superb customer service. But the critical foundation of quality care is patient safety. Patients who come to us for healing should never accidentally be harmed while in our care. Ensuring patient safety is a challenge in today’s health care environment. Twenty-first century medicine is complicated. Hospitalized patients are sicker than ever. Many have multiple illnesses and conditions requiring complex care. Recognizing this challenge, Hartford Hospital has launched a bold, comprehensive and transformative initiative to ensure the safety of every patient now and in the future. We are committed to becoming the best in the country for patient safety, and we are pursuing that goal by taking innovative action and creating a culture of safety at every level of our organization.

Partnering for Patient Safety

The core of the hospital’s patient-safety initiative is the Patient Safety Action Group (PSAG). Launched in January 2008, PSAG (commonly called “PSAG”) is a multidisciplinary group comprising directors and managers from all areas of the hospital. Jamie Roche, MD, Vice President for Patient Safety and Quality, and Linda Spinack, RN, MSN, Vice President of Patient Care Services, co-chair the group. PSAG meets every weekday from 7:30 to 9 a.m. Its roughly 30 participants include nurses, doctors, administrators, environmental services staff, biomedical engineers, pharmacists, purchasing officers and others. People throughout the hospital are encouraged to bring safety concerns to the attention of the group, and participants discuss these concerns at the daily meeting.

As the name implies, PSAG focuses on taking fast action to resolve potential safety hazards. Because every department is represented at the meeting, solutions to many problems can be decided upon on the spot, eliminating risks almost as soon as they’re identified. Smaller action groups are deployed for issues requiring additional or ongoing work, and action groups report back at subsequent meetings.

A Never-Ending Process of Improvement

The people of Hartford Hospital want to keep patients safe. As an organization, we are putting in place the resources and systems our talented and dedicated people need to ensure safe, high-quality care. We are creating the open, transparent culture essential to achieving excellence in patient safety. We establish sound policies and procedures and make sure people understand them. We expect accountability. We measure performance. We communicate results. When shortcomings are noted, we aim—not to assign blame—but to encourage creative ideas for improvement and reward innovation that yields positive results. We support, respect and help each other as we work together for the good of our patients. Most of all, we recognize that the journey to excellence in patient safety is one that never really ends. No matter how well we do, we will always strive to do better. Because that is what our patients deserve. That is what we demand of ourselves. And that is, simply put, the way Hartford Hospital works.
AT HARTFORD HOSPITAL, PATIENT SAFETY IS EVERYONE’S JOB.
AND WE WON’T REST UNTIL WE’RE THE VERY BEST.

2008 WILL GO DOWN IN OUR HISTORY AS THE YEAR HARTFORD HOSPITAL BEGAN TO TRANSFORM ITSELF FROM A GREAT REGIONAL HOSPITAL TO ONE OF THE TOP TERTIARY-CARE MEDICAL CENTERS IN THE NATION.

This is an ambitious undertaking. But Hartford Hospital has everything it takes to succeed. Our advantages include a 154-year tradition of excellence in clinical care and research, an extraordinary Medical Staff that continues to attract some of the best medical minds in the world, and a Board and new executive team with the vision and experience to lead the way. Most of all, this hospital has an abundance of talented people eager to embrace a culture of change and challenge themselves and each other to a new level of excellence. With all these attributes in place, we are confident of the hospital’s ability to transform aspiration into achievement.

Why embark on this journey? Because it is the right thing to do for our patients and for the communities we serve. By taking this already outstanding hospital to a new level of performance, we will continuously improve the quality of our care. We will provide every patient with a better, safer, more coordinated care experience. And we will be responsible stewards of a health care resource vital to our state and our region.

This year we took a variety of actions toward our goals. We instituted a hospital-wide patient-safety and quality-improvement initiative. We proposed to the University of Connecticut Health Center a partnership that would strengthen medical education and research in the state. We took steps to better integrate the other hospitals and health care providers in our regional network in order to provide patients with more seamless continuity of care.

The Board of Directors plays a key role in moving Hartford Hospital forward. Recognizing that advancement demands investment, the Board this year authorized expenditures to accelerate progress toward a completely electronic medical record, acquire our third da Vinci® Surgical System, and purchase a new helicopter and help fund for our LIFE STAR emergency air transport system, the only program of its kind in the state.

All of us who are members of the Hartford Hospital community today have inherited a proud tradition. We are privileged to have the opportunity to build on that tradition—to envision possibilities, set challenging goals and work together to create one of the model health care institutions of the 21st century.
